OVERVIEW

Dave Lanferman is a member of the Real Estate, Land Use and Environmental Practice Group in the firm's San Francisco office.

Areas of Practice

Mr. Lanferman's practice emphasizes land use planning and permitting, real estate development, environmental, and regulatory compliance for a wide range of private and public projects. His practice includes extensive experience under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), advising on the appropriate processing of environmental reviews, as well as defending or contesting CEQA approvals, and more than 25 years of experience in virtually all facets of California land planning, zoning, subdivision and development permitting, and public agency practice.

Dave has been lead counsel in litigating numerous significant issues of land use and environmental law, including several appellate decisions involving CEQA, the Mitigation Fee Act, the Subdivision Map Act, vested rights, the validity of mitigation fees or conditions of approval imposed on new development, and issues of state and federal preemption of local regulations. He is one of the preeminent attorneys in California practicing in the area of the Mitigation Fee Act, environmental mitigation impact fees and exactions. His clients include developers, property owners, public agencies, public interest groups and industry associations.

Dave's practice also features extensive litigation and administrative agency experience on land use and development issues, including CEQA and specialized environmental and regulatory practices such as air quality, water resources, flood control, sensitive habitats, endangered species, and the Coastal Act. Mr. Lanferman has assisted public agencies and developers in land use planning, CEQA and environmental review, permitting and obtaining entitlements from State and local governments, and from a wide range of regional, State and federal regulatory agencies for major residential, commercial, and institutional projects.

EDUCATION

- J.D., University of California, Hastings, 1976
- B.A., University of California, Davis, 1973, high honors, Phi Beta Kappa

EXPERIENCE

Planning and transactions: Mr. Lanferman's practice includes development, permitting and real estate transactional planning, negotiation and documentation; development agreements, annexation and LAFCO compliance; infrastructure finance; environmental review, mitigation and compliance; water supply analysis; mitigation of air emissions; wetlands and natural resources permitting; subdivision map processing; Williamson Act contracts; and CEQA compliance.

Administrative agency practice: Mr. Lanferman frequently appears before local, regional, state, and federal administrative and regulatory agencies. His practice includes city and county boards and administrative agency hearings (e.g., California Coastal Commission; Regional Water Quality Control Boards; Regional Air Pollution Control Districts; Commission on State Mandates; LAFCO).

Litigation: Mr. Lanferman has extensive experience in all aspects of land use and real estate litigation in both state and federal courts. He has an extensive appellate practice, including frequent referrals of amicus briefing for public interest advocacy groups and has argued before the California Supreme Court. Mr. Lanferman has also been lead counsel in several of the most significant cases involving land use and permitting issues such as development fees and exactions, vested rights under the Subdivision Map Act, CEQA review, Clean Air Act and air emission mitigation, State law preemption of local regulations, ballot propositions, and local initiatives and referenda.
