OVERVIEW

Ping Chu is an associate in the Intellectual Property Practice Group in the firm's Shanghai and Los Angeles offices.

Areas of Practice

Ping represents US and international clients in intellectual property transactions, prosecution and litigation. She has counseled clients in numerous industries, including telecom, video gaming, Internet, medical devices, life sciences and high-tech.

Ping has expertise in transactions involving licenses, research, development, clinical, outsourcing, manufacturing supply and distribution agreements, and technology acquisitions. She assists clients with trademark and patent prosecution, opposition and cancellation and reexamination in U.S., China, and other East Asian territories. She is experienced with U.S. and China intellectual property disputes and litigation, including matters in front of the Federal Circuit, U.S. International Trade Commission, U.S. Customs, China Customs and courts within mainland China.

Having lived in Taiwan, the U.S. and mainland China and being a native speaker of English and Chinese, Ping specializes in counseling and resolving cultural and legal issues faced by companies in cross-border transactions and litigations. With great interest in improving intellectual property protection in China, she has submitted position papers to the Chinese government regarding amendments to China's Trademark Law and Patent Law. Ping regularly counsels US clients on how to do business in China and how to protect their intellectual property in China.

Starting her legal career as a summer associate at Sheppard Mullin, Ping departed from the firm for two years to serve as corporate counsel at a major entertainment studio in Burbank, California. She then rejoined Sheppard Mullin to lead the firm's Shanghai Office intellectual property practice.
