Abby Meyer is an associate in the Business Trial Practice Group and the lead associate for the firm's Food & Beverage team. She is also a member of the firm's Class Action Defense, Cannabis, and Healthcare teams.

Areas of Practice

Abby's practice focuses on complex civil litigation, business disputes, and consumer class action defense. She has represented companies in the food and beverage industry, cosmetics/beauty/personal health industry, cannabis industry, software industry (companies and developers), the energy industry, the financial industry, and the entertainment/sports industry. Her clients have faced breach of contract, fraud, misrepresentation, construction defect, and lender liability claims. On the class action side, she has defended against alleged violations of California's Unfair Competition Law, False Advertising Law, Consumers Legal Remedies Act, and similar alleged violations of other states' laws.

Abby is involved with all aspects of case management, from case filing to trial, to appellate practice. She handles cases in both state and federal court, and also in the arbitration context. With Abby's assistance, her clients have reached favorable outcomes including favorable settlements and even dismissal of cases at the summary judgment phase.

To help her clients make the best strategy decisions (both during litigation and as part of litigation avoidance planning), Abby makes a point of learning her clients' businesses and tracks litigation and enforcement trends affecting their industries. Her goal is to give legal advice that also helps her clients achieve their business objectives.

In addition to her legal practice, Abby is an advocate for women and parents. She co-chairs the firm's OC Families group, which provides resources to the Orange County office's parents and coordinates family-friendly events for colleagues, clients, and their families. She previously served as co-chair of the Orange County Bar Association's Mommy Esquire committee and served for several years as a director of the board for the Orange County Women Lawyers Association.
