Kristin Housh is a partner in the Business Trial Practice Group in the firm's San Diego (Del Mar) office.

Areas of Practice

Kristin represents clients in complex business litigation matters such as:

- high-stakes contractual disputes;
- equity ownership, partnership, and shareholder disputes;
- trade secret misappropriation lawsuits; and
- corporate governance and securities fraud lawsuits.

Kristin's clients range from large publicly-traded companies, to small privately-held companies, to start-ups, to individuals, and everything in between. Kristin practices in both Federal and State court, and, in particular, has significant experience practicing in San Diego Superior Court.

Kristin also represents clients in pro bono matters, including obtaining a reversal of summary judgment in an appeal before the Ninth Circuit on behalf of an incarcerated client denied constitutionally adequate medical care. In addition, she helped bring a class action lawsuit on behalf of individuals who were denied access to the asylum process in violation of U.S. immigration laws.

Kristin is active in the San Diego community and is dedicated to public service and promoting diversity. She sits on the Advisory Board for the American Bar Association's Immigration Justice Project, she is a member of the Host Committee for Equality California's annual fundraising event, and she regularly presents on current legal issues as a Barrister of the Louis M. Welsh Inn of Court.

While attending law school, Kristin served as a law clerk at the Williamson County Attorney's Office in Georgetown, Texas, where she prosecuted misdemeanor criminal cases in both jury and bench trials.
