Sarah Aberg is special counsel in the White Collar Defense and Corporate Investigations Group in the firm's New York office.

Areas of Practice

Sarah's practice encompasses litigation, internal investigations and white collar defense, with a focus on financial services and securities. She has deep expertise in the areas of Bank Secrecy Act and anti-financial crimes compliance, and regularly represents financial institutions, financial services companies, and fintechs in designing and deploying payment technologies, including those related to money transmission, virtual currencies, electronic payments, and stored value. Sarah's investigative experience covers a wide variety of criminal issues, including corporate and insider fraud, immigration fraud, mortgage fraud, insider trading, market manipulation, money laundering, terrorist financing, cybercrimes, and data privacy violations. Sarah's regulatory practice encompasses market regulation, foreign registration and disclosure requirements, supervisory procedures, and sales practices. Sarah's clients include corporations, financial services companies, and associated individuals in connection with investigations and regulatory matters before multiple state and prudential regulators and law enforcement, including the U.S. Department of Justice, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the New York State Department of Financial Services, and the New York Attorney General's Office.
