As the nation begins distributing the COVID-19 vaccine, employers must continue to assess how to keep their workplaces safe. And, as we approach the pandemic's one year mark, it is just as critical for employers to ensure that employee wellness and mental health remain top of mind. Sheppard Mullin is proud to partner with Cameron Stout, CEO and Founder of Stout Heart, Inc., for an informative and inspiring presentation on the importance of employee mental health and strategies to improve employee wellness, morale and retention.

Please join us for a one-hour live webinar presentation where we will discuss the following issues employers face:

- Can we require that our employees receive the vaccination?
- Are there potential legal consequences to mandatory vaccination?
- What are our employees' anxieties about returning to the office vs. continuing to work remotely?
- What can we do as employers to improve our employees' wellness, morale and retention?
