Prevailing Wage and Misclassification Traps For Contractors and How to Avoid Them

Presented by

- Paul Cowie, Partner
- Morgan Forsey, Associate
- Edward Lozowicki, Of Counsel

Construction industry employers are invited to join Sheppard Mullin Construction, Labor and Employment attorneys on November 6, 2013 for a breakfast briefing on contractor liability, prevailing wage law, misclassification issues and more. This briefing will help you avoid pitfalls that can cost your company time and money. The speakers will discuss the following topics and answer your questions.

Risks of Non-Compliance

Contractor's liability for the mistakes of their subcontractors

The Prevailing Wage Trap

Four things every employer dealing with the public sector must know:

- The ramifications of misclassifying workers
- DLSE's commitment to assessing and collecting penalties
- 2013 penalty increases
- Senate Bill 7 - charter cities and prevailing wages

Misclassification of Independent Contractors, Joint Employment, and the EDD

What you should know about developments in the law and enforcement strategy:

- How this impacts prevailing wage (i.e. you didn't think you were the employer, guess again)
- Limitations on indemnifications
- Proactive steps to avoid liability
- When is a trucker an "independent contractor"?
