Whitney Hodges, a partner and Cannabis Team leader, has been named a 2020 Cannabis Trailblazer by The National Law Journal. The list, published in a special September supplement, spotlights “a handful of individuals...that are truly agents of change.”

Hodges’ profile highlights her early interest in cannabis after the legalization of medical marijuana in California. “The idea of a brand-new use introduced a whole new vernacular and shook things up in the real estate industry. I couldn’t find research about it happening previously , so I began monitoring legalization nationally.”
