

Diluting FTDA Claims: The Supreme Court Narrows The Federal Trademark Dilution Act, But By How Much?

04.21.2003

In its recent decision in Moseley v. Secret Catalogue, Inc., the U.S. Supreme Court announced a new standard for the application of the anti-dilution portions of the Federal Trademark Dilution Act. Unfortunately, the Court left a number of important issues open for future resolution.

Published in the April 21 edition of Mealey's Litigation Report: Intellectual Property.