Charles Glover is a privacy and cybersecurity associate based in the New York office. He is a member of the Intellectual Property Practice Group and the Privacy and Cybersecurity Team.

Areas of Practice

Charles helps his clients navigate complex privacy and technology issues without losing sight of their business objectives. With his help, his clients are able to develop and implement dynamic strategies tailored to meet their needs. Charles regularly assists clients of all sizes and stages of development—from major financial institutions to small business entrepreneurs.

Charles works with organizations to respond to all stages of data breach, including to prepare cybersecurity measures, and to comply with domestic and international privacy regulations. Charles calls upon significant litigation experience to help his clients resolve disputes. He has represented clients before federal and state courts, regulatory agencies, as well as in formal and informal forms of alternative dispute resolution. Charles' dispute resolution efforts have resulted in successful outcomes for a major sports franchise, well-known entertainment brands, and many others.

In 2021, Thomson Reuters recognized Charles as a Super Lawyers Rising Star.
