David Dworsky is a special counsel in the Business Trial Practice Group in the firm's Los Angeles office.

Areas of Practice

Mr. Dworsky represents clients in a variety of high exposure litigation matters, including consumer class actions, shareholder derivative lawsuits, insurance bad faith litigation and general business litigation. He has litigated cases in state and federal courts in various jurisdictions across the country.

Mr. Dworsky has significant experience defending businesses against claims based on California's Unfair Competition Law and Consumers Legal Remedies Act. He also has experience litigating complex insurance issues, including defending personal lines insurers in class action lawsuits based on alleged breaches of policy provisions, violations of state insurance statutes and regulations, and antitrust violations. He also represents commercial and personal lines insurers in high exposure bad faith cases.
