Drew Svor is a partner in the firm's Washington, D.C. office and a member of the firm's Telecom Team.

Areas of Practice

Drew's practice is focused on technology, media and telecommunications, with an emphasis on satellite, wireless and new technologies.

Drew counsels companies on all aspects of communications law and regulations. He also represents companies in matters before the Federal Communications Commission, including rulemaking, licensing and enforcement matters. He counsels clients with respect to international telecommunications issues, including frequently representing companies before the "Team Telecom" Executive Branch agencies, as well as the Committee of Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS).

Drew frequently speaks and writes on telecommunications matters, including at events hosted by the Federal Communications Bar Association (FCBA) and the ABA Space Symposium.
