Katie is an associate in the Antitrust and Competition Practice Group in the firm's Washington, D.C. office. Katie's practice focuses on complex business litigation and government investigations into antitrust and competition issues.

Prior to joining the firm, Katie completed internships with United States Senator Dianne Feinstein and with United Kingdom Member of Parliament Graham Allen, for whom she conducted nutritional poverty research and drafted initiatives. She also served as a law clerk for the Baltimore Police Department, where she focused on compliance with the city's consent decree entered into with the Department of Justice.
