Raymond DiPerna is special counsel in the Intellectual Property Practice Group, Patent Prosecution, in the firm's San Diego (Del Mar) office.

Ares of Practice

Ray is a patent prosecutor currently practicing exclusively before the US Patent and Trademark Office. He is experienced in the preparation and prosecution of utility and design patent applications, both domestically and internationally, primarily in the electrical, computer, and mechanical arts. He is also experienced in the fields of telecommunications, hardware and software systems, computing platforms, AI, machine learning, blockchain technology, data encryption and authentication, mobile apps, and the like, having prepared and prosecuted many patent applications in those technological arts.

Other representative technologies include: e-commerce, business methods, financial transaction systems, advertising systems, memory systems, image processing systems, x-ray sensors and dental equipment, digital cameras, 3D printing systems, hologram recording mediums, vehicle systems including transmission systems, semiconductor devices, firearms, and faucet and flow systems. During the course of his practice, Ray prepares appeal briefs and delivers oral arguments before the Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB).
