

Mathew Shatzkes Recognized as a "Go-To Thought Leader" by National Law Review

National Law Review

12.16.2020

Matthew Shatzkes has been recognized by the National Law Review as a "Go-To Thought Leader" for his thought leadership on healthcare regulatory, compliance, and transactional advice; specifically focusing on telehealth regulation. With the COVID-19 pandemic and the need for social distancing, telehealth became essential and Mr. Shatzkes' experience in digital health technologies provided NLR readers with an important resource during COVID-19 especially concerning HIPAA, Medicare and behavioral health services matters.

The National Law Review's "Go-To Thought Leadership Awards" recognizes 71 exceptional legal authors in practice areas ranging from Aviation Law to the SBA's Paycheck Protection Program Implementation. Award recipients are selected from a pool of over 20,000 legal news articles published by the National Law Review (NLR) in 2020. Those honored wrote relevant, consistent and well-thought-out legal news, and the award committee also considered pieces quoted or cited by other publications and media. With the high volume of content the National Law Review publishes, the selected authors and organizations are truly "Go-To Thought Leaders" in their areas of expertise. Less than 1% of authors on National Law Review receive this award.
