

Can a California Court Invalidate Agreements on International Service of Process

A Court of Appeal held that parties may not contract around the formal service requirements of the Hague Service convention

Daily Journal

06.28.2018

San Francisco partner Neil Popovic authored an article regarding a California Court of Appeal decisions that held that parties may not contract around the formal service requirements in the Hague Service Convention.

Practice Areas

Litigation